

Las Vegas Review Journal

June 9, 2005

reviewjournal.com

Who's Your Daddy?

Father's day gifts for the man in your life

You might be surprised to learn that the National Retail Federation expects us to spend $8.23 billion this year on Father's Day gifts — an average of $85.66 per person. But don't go skimping out yet because you think this country is spoiling dad. According to the NRF, we spent $11.25 billion on our maternal parent on Mother's Day. That ends up translating into a whopping $18.97 more on average that we'll spend on mom than dad. Maybe you should reconsider how much you love the old man in your life and pony up the same amount for both. This gift guide is designed to rid you of any excuses that your dad is hard to shop for, or he has everything he could want.

“Just in time for Father's Day....will help fathers introduce sports to their toddlers and babies.”

Acqua di Parma Blu Mediterraneo Cipresso Di Toscana Collection (2)
Pamper your pops with the classic smell of sage, basil and lavender oils with just a hint of cypress in Parma's classic scent. The men's collection, by For... has launched three new writing devices just in time for Father's Day, including barrel pens made with 17 steel stems, fountain pens with a wove design and ballpoint pens and pencils in pure aluminum. With sleek designs and prices ranging from $75 to $299, don't let him run out of ink!

Athletic Baby DVD's

Dilemma: What can you give dad on behalf of your little ones? If he's a sports enthusiast and you have a baby, you're in luck. A new DVD series, Athletic Baby ($16.99) is parent for a... price. Chaps Easy Care Plus Short-sleeved Sport Shirt in Red ($36) with Chaps Classic Fit Jeans in Vintage ($39.50); on model in foreground, Chaps Easy Care Plus Short-sleeved Sport Shirt in Poolside Blue ($36).